*The New England
College of Optometry*

Boston, Massachusetts

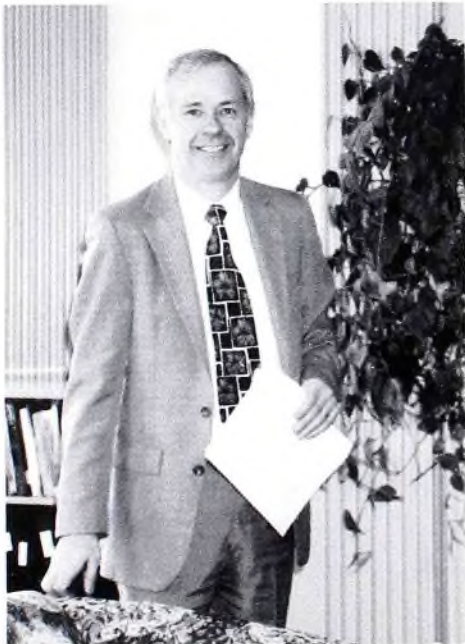

Dear Members of the Class of 1998:

I extend my congratulations to you on the receipt of your Doctor of Optometry degree. Each of you deserve high recognition for your academic success. Together, the Class of 1998 will be an important force in shaping the history of the optometric profession.

The College has undergone significant change during your brief tenure, but this change is minor in comparison to the changes in health care delivery, technology, and standard of care that you will encounter in the career upon which you will embark. The management of health care in the market place by other than the practitioner or patient is now a matter of fact.

Your challenge is to uphold the highest professional standard of patient care and to preserve the rights of your patient at all times. It is a challenge that I am confident you will meet time and time again.

The faculty and the entire College community extend their best wishes to you upon your graduation. At the same time, we welcome you as fellow colleagues and pledge our continued support to you in your service and care to the public.

Best wishes for the future.

Larry R. Clausen, O.D., Ed.D.
President

Dear Members of the Class of 1998:

As you and I leave this college together, you have a mission to fulfill those personal and professional goals which you labored so hard to achieve.

During your years at the New England College of Optometry, you learn the academic and clinical skills which will enable you to be part of the optometric profession. As Dean, I was privileged to share a part of your life with you.

In a sense, as I move into retirement, I take with me so many pleasant memories. It has been a special pleasure to be with you and to know so many of you. I wish you a happy and healthy life in the years ahead.

God bless and good luck.

William P. Kames
Dean of Alumni Development

Dear Members of the Class of 1998:

The pages that follow are a visual record of your time at the New England College of Optometry. You'll see photographs of friends, faculty, and administrators. You'll view labs, classrooms and clinics. You'll recognize sites from our beautiful Back Bay location. This photographic essay represents the essence of your daily life as you took steps to become the best Doctor of Optometry you could be.

As you look through the pages of this yearbook, certain memories are bound to be evoked. I hope, that as you relive your experiences as a student here, that you reflect upon the inner strength you discovered to pull you through, as well as the growth process that allowed you to successfully meet the challenges of your training.

The education you have received at the New England College of Optometry readies you to be a credit to the profession of optometry. You have demonstrated the ability to be technically correct as well as morally and ethically responsible. These are qualities needed for the lifelong learning you will undertake as a Doctor of Optometry.

I offer you heartfelt congratulations on your achievements, and wish you much success as you start this next phase of your career.

Sincerely,

Raymond E. Dye

The History of The New England College of Optometry

The College had its beginnings in the mid-1890's when a Boston ophthalmologist, Dr. August A. Klein, recognized the need for a new profession. With Dr. Klein's new school of optics, the stage was set for the evolution of a new profession: optometry. The beginnings of both the profession and Dr. Klein's mission were humble enough. In its first year, the Klein School of Optics employed seven instructors who taught classes in optical instruments, refraction and physiology, spectroscopy, anatomy, photographic optics, astronomy and mechanical optics. The program of study was one year long and two students graduated at the end of the first year.

As time went on, the Klein School of Optics and the new profession of optometry gained popularity and support. By 1903, 166 students had completed the Klein program. In 1909, the program expanded to a two-year course offered as the last two years of high school education.

The Klein School of Optics changed its name to the Massachusetts School of Optometry in 1919 and by 1930 required four years of high school prior to enrolling in the two-year program. At this time, the profession of optometry was making rapid advancements. Practitioners were becoming recognized as the primary providers of vision care and the scope of the field was expanding. The curriculum at the Massachusetts School of Optometry expanded to three years in 1934 and to four years in 1939.

By 1950, the institution, by then called the Massachusetts College of Optometry, received the authority to grant the Doctor of Optometry degree. Two years of college were now required for admission. In 1976, the College changed its name to The New England College of Optometry to reflect more accurately its regional constituency.

Today, The New England College of Optometry provides a four year professional curriculum backed by fifty full-time equivalent faculty. The academic and clinical programs have been greatly expanded to reflect the changes in the profession. With the expanding scope of optometry in the treatment and management of eye health conditions, the curriculum has placed increasing emphasis on biosciences. The clinical education program blends together the students' theoretical knowledge with actual patient care.

The Facilities

The College's main classroom and building are located on Beacon Street in Boston's historic "Back Bay" neighborhood. This beautiful section of the city was at one time a shallow bay. The bay was filled and the reclaimed land area was made available for new construction in the mid-1800's.

Namais Hall

This building located at 424 Beacon Street was named after one of the College's most memorable professors, Dr. Foster Namais. It was designed by J.H. Schweinforth and built in 1904. Its interior is distinguished by a four-story spiral staircase capped by circular stained glass window.

Namais Hall houses classrooms, a cafeteria, the bookstore, administrative offices and many instructional laboratories.

The Library

The College library building was constructed in 1894. It was the childhood home of Emily Sears, who later became Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge. Its opulence reflects the tastes of the wealthy elite of Boston at that time. The interior is graced with handcarved wooden paneling, marble fireplaces and handpainted guild wallcoverings.

The City of Boston (by R. Jeun)

The city's early elite may have pompously called Boston the "Hub of the Universe" yet we, as students, affectionally called it our "home-away-from-home" for four years. It's hard to believe that we spent so many years of our lives studying and living in one of the most historically important cities in the country.

I suppose I could go into the historical aspects of Boston but you can easily look that up in any textbook. Besides, I don't think those are the aspects of Boston that we will remember when we're old and grey. Rather, we will remember the little pleasures and seemingly insignificant everyday buildings and businesses we took for granted in Boston --- like the Ultimate Bagel on Newbury Street, the Coffee Connection which turned into Starbucks right by the Hynes Convention T station, Tower Records, beer and darts at Crossroads, cheap food and 5 cent photocopying at the Quality Mart, The Pour House, the food court at 'the Pru', strolling around the Copley Plaza, and seeing movies at the Sheri.

It's these little things about Boston that we'll cherish forever because they were such an integral part of our lives. So, if ever you find yourself in Boston again, go back and visit your favourite spots and just take a moment to remember all the good old times.

"It Takes All Kinds..."

of people to make the world go around — is how the saying goes. During our four years of optometry school, we learned how true that saying actually was. We came from all parts of the country (including Canada) and met in Boston as a class four years ago. Each of us came into the profession with our own unique talents and personalities. With time, we got to know more and more about each other and in the process, developed lifelong friendships.

We've got it all in our class — leaders, followers, brave and shy, neurotics, philosophers, musicians and poets, talkers, the studious and the slackers, the front-row people and the back-row people and many, many more kinds. Our similar interest in optometry is what brought us all together and our differences are what makes us original. We laughed, studied, worked hard and partied hard together.

For our final year, we were spread across the four corners of the country, putting to practice the things we had learned in school. Although distance kept us apart, our friends remained close in our hearts.

After graduation, there will be happiness because we're finally finished with school, excitement at the prospects of building a new career and sadness because we will each go our own separate ways. Many of us will look forward to the day when we see one another at the next class reunion, association meeting or maybe unexpectedly while walking down the street. Whatever the future holds, the Class of 1998 can always look back on the NEWENCO days for many great memories.

OD1

"DORMIEZ"

The dormitory, nestled between the library and an MIT fraternity, was home to 21 first year students. Students were chosen by a lottery system and assigned to either single or double rooms. They started out on the first day as strangers but ended up as friends at the end of the year. The rest of the class knew the gang as the "Dormies". The bunch naturally bonded as they went out dancing, crashed an MIT frat party, celebrated birthdays (once with a stripper!), gathered around the TV to watch Melrose Place, and shared weekly battles against the rats. NEWENCO no longer has a dormitory but the Dormies always have their stories about dorm life which they cherish and will someday be able to tell their grandchildren.

The Makings of an Optometrist

Our first day in lab was the first time many of us had looked through a retinoscope or flipped the lenses of a phoropter. It's funny to remember how long it took us to figure out how to neutralize the motion in a schematic eye! The letters of the Snellen chart were ingrained in our minds and ophthalmoscopy slowly became second nature. Lo and behold, we were well on our way to becoming optometrists!

Hallowe'en

Hvery year, it is the responsibility of the OD2 student council representatives to organize the Hallowe'en party. This year, the party was held aboard the Spirit of Boston and was generously sponsored by Bausch & Lomb. Costumed party-goers boarded the ship at Rhove's Wharf and sailed off for a late night cruise around the Boston Harbor. There was a costume contest, trivia and prizes given out by B&L. All who attended had a good time and left with some great B&L parting gifts.

Second year was a time when we brushed up on our technical skills-- visual fields, tonometry, 78D/90D, gonioscopy and binocular indirect ophthalmoscopy. We got first hand experience handling and modifying all types of contact lenses. There always seemed to be a proficiency around the corner which meant that there were many lunch and evening hours sacrificed to spend practicing in pre-clinic I or II. But look at us now at the end of our training! What a long way we've come!!!

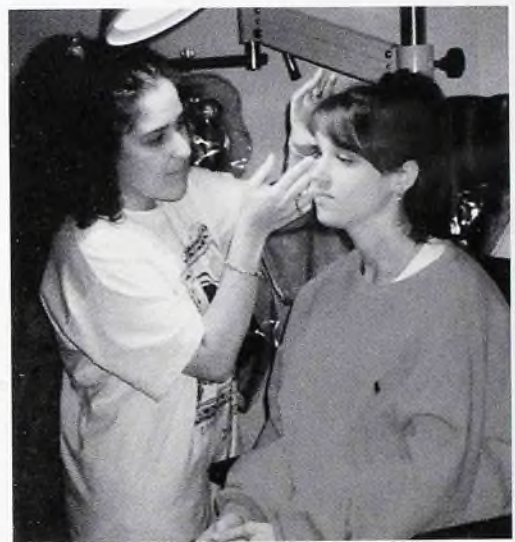

“I’m so thrilled.” Tina Sorey looks like she can hardly contain her excitement at having a contact lens put in her eye by Julie Rodman once again.

The New England Eye Institute (NEEI) is home to the school's "real-life" optometry clinic where students encountered their first real patients in second year. The clinic is about a 15 minute trek from the school (in good weather) and located smack dab behind the infamous Fenway Park (Home of the Boston Red Sox). The clinic underwent massive renovations during our OD2 Spring Quarter. As a result, NEEI now boasts a modern new interior, waiting area, dispensing displays and some new equipment in the examination rooms on the ground floor. Two large conference rooms allow adequate space for group discussions and lectures.

Unfortunately, this was the year when Boston suffered numerous bouts of wicked bad weather leaving flood damage to NEEI's brand new facilities. The clinic had to be shut down on two occasions for repairs but it was not long until NEEI returned to its normal routine. A truly memorable year!!!

Each of the students in the Class of '98 will have their own particular fond memories of NEEI to cherish.

As part of a requirement for professional training, everyone in the class enrolled for a Saturday morning session of CPR at the school in order to receive their CPR certification.

After few hours worth of lectures followed by some techniques on huffing and puffing, students were well on their way to being prepared to act in the event of an emergency.

Just look at the proper form and intense concentration on the faces of students below as they practiced on the CPR dummies provided!

"PING PONG"

(ahem...Table Tennis)

"Ping Pong", more formerly called "Table Tennis", was a game enjoyed by a handful of fanatics in the class. The rhythmic 'pinging' of the paddles hitting the ball and the 'ponging' of the ball bouncing off the table echoed off the walls of the cafeteria..

VOSH held a ping pong tournament fundraiser during second year and students signed up to play against each other. There was a good turn out and everyone who participated had lots of fun.

The ping pong table would eventually have a difficult time finding a permanent home and was moved from the cafeteria to the locker room and then to the old dormitory. Alas, whoknows where the poor table is now?

Students also learned how to insert temporary collagen plugs as a diagnostic procedure for the assessment of dry eye.

"[We] went to this house to see a woman. First, we could barely find her because she was buried under her covers. We asked her husband if she really needed this exam today. He said, "Definitely." ... Anyway, we got from the history that she had been falling lately and having uncontrolled bowels. The husband was getting annoyed at all of our eye questions...the husband said her 'eye' was really in need of some help. We said we'd look at both eyes and the husband was confused! So then we were confused! This went on for a while and it turned out that the husband thought we were the visiting nurses association and there to give her a rectal exam! That was her 'eye'! I'll never forget that. We rescheduled."

For our course in Practice Management, the class was divided into groups and given an assignment to devise a means of distributing a given amount of income amongst three different members of a group practice. Students had to address issues such as seniority status, workload and managed care vs. self-pay billing. One member from each group was appointed to present their proposal to the rest of the class. The project proved educational as well as providing a memorable morning filled with laughter, entertainment and good spirits.

Dr. White: “Why...it's a religious experience.”

P. Beauboeuf: “I'm atheist.”

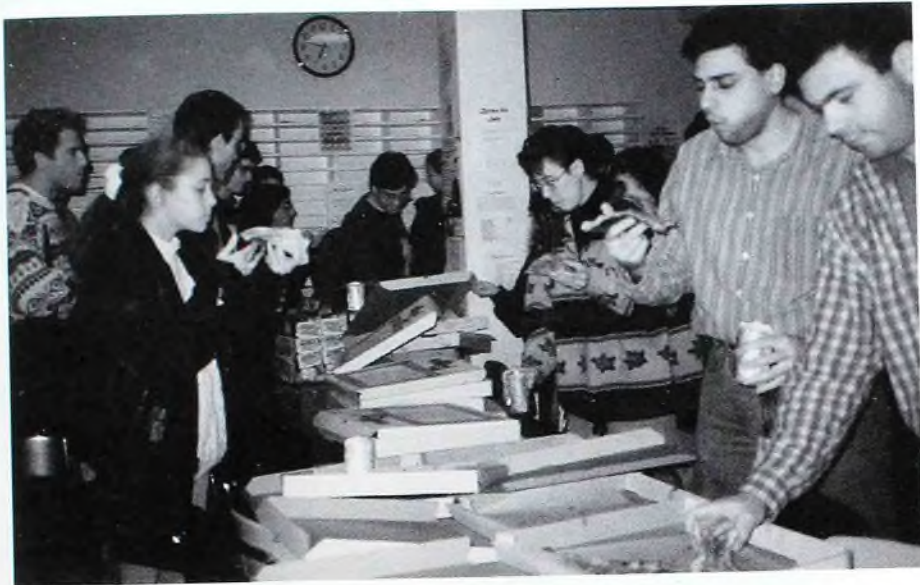

Dr. White: “Let see if I can explain it this time so that either you understand it or I frustrate you to the point where you just give up. I'm good at the second one.”

[Dr. White goes through the explanation regarding induced astigmatism once again]

Dr. White: “So, did I frustrate you so you have to give up?”

P. Beauboeuf: “No, I got it.”

Dr. White: “Good. Now explain it to me because I've been doing this for 21 years and I never understood it!”

HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Yeah, yeah, yeah... so not very many OD3's attended NEWENCO's Hallowe'en party this year. We may have gotten more apathetic as the years went by but at least a handful of hardcore OD3 Hallowe'eners had lots of fun and represented our class well.

Students often find themselves far away from home and family for the holidays. However, throughout the years, students have come together to share a Thanksgiving meal with classmates who have become their family away from home.

Each members of the Class of 1998 would like to thank their parents, relatives, friends and all the people who made it possible for us to come to study in Boston.

And thank you to the Class of 1998 for providing each other with so many unforgettable moments!

“Surprise!”

Happy Birthday Yale!!! It was still a week or so before Yale's actual birthday but a surprise party just gave the class another reason to get together and party once more. Yale's reaction was one of classic surprise (left) when he turned around to see a big group of classmates and friends bunched together in Chanda's dimly lit living room (below).

Imagine yourself sitting on a train continuously, day and night, for 51 days straight!!! That's the cumulative equivalent of how many days Jerry Zeltzer spent travelling from Rhode Island to Boston for four years almost every single day!

Volunteer Optometrists in Service to Humanity (V.O.S.H.)

I first learned about VOSH as a second year student. I got involved knowing only that VOSH was a group of students and doctors that travelled to third world countries to give eye exams and distribute eyeglasses. In November 1995, I travelled as a member of VOSH to Merida, Mexico where I witnessed how prescription glasses or medications can totally change people's lives. Some of our patients had never seen clearly before. Others broke down and cried when they first looked through their new glasses. I was amazed at how desperate and needy these people were for a service we could easily provide.

This photo is one of my patients I saw during my first VOSH trip. She is only 6 years old and had spent her life with blurry vision. I was watching her playing with a new toy while waiting in line. She was holding the toy almost to her nose to see it clearly. After seeing her and many patients like her, I wanted to get much more involved with VOSH. When we returned to Boston, I ran for VOSH president and was elected. I was very nervous about taking the position of VOSH president because I knew that thousands of people were counting on us in Mexico. I had never been in charge of something of this magnitude before. I had overwhelming support from all the members. They were always willing to help out and were always enthusiastic about what they were doing.

The patients that VOSH members examine do not have any practical access to eye care. Many of our patients in Mexico live in houses with thatched roofs and no electricity or running water. The cost of a pair of prescription glasses is equivalent to one week's salary. They rely solely on the VOSH mission to provide them with proper eye care. VOSH members see most of their patients once. This gives us only one chance to properly refract, diagnose and treat any problems they may have.

As VOSH president, I was in charge of two trips -- the VOSH#1 mission to Merida, Mexico in November 1996 and the VOSH#2 mission to Chetumal, Mexico in February 1997. In total, over 5300 patients were seen and over 7000 pairs of prescription glasses were dispensed. We also treated numerous cases of eye diseases and infections and brought boxes of stuffed animals for the children.

If it was not for the help of Pete Paradis (vice president) and all the VOSH officers, these two trips would never have been as successful. It was an immense pleasure to be in charge of VOSH. I feel that I learned a great deal from the experience. My memories of the two trips are deeply treasured. I am so very proud of the work the VOSH group accomplished. Every member showed the professionalism and genuine concern for their patients that make them the fine doctors that they are today. I would like to thank Student Council '96-'97 for their full support. In addition, I would also like to thank Dr. Paul White for his personal contributions to VOSH.

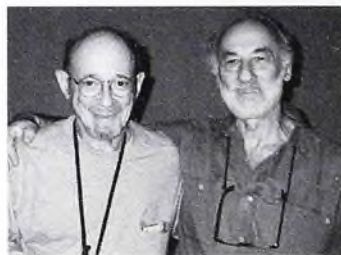

In order to be eligible for a VOSH mission, students were required to donate a minimum of 40 hours of their time doing various tasks in preparation for the mission. There were glasses to be sorted, washed, read and packaged. Crates of prepared glasses had to be organized. Funds needed to be raised. Students went on local vision screenings for the Lions Club. In the end, VOSH was able to raise over $19,000 in funds. A total of 44% of the OD3 class became eligible to attend one of either two VOSH missions this year which made it the very first time that VOSH organized two separate trips in a single year.

Students received a crash course in Spanish phrases for optometric procedures before the trip. Using the language may have been a struggle at first, but every student managed to handle their exams in their own (sometimes unique) way. In the end, everyone came back to Boston with at least a few new Spanish words to add to their vocabulary.

English:

Hello. How are you?
Cover your right/left eye.
Can you read this line of letters?
What letter or number is it?
Better or worse?
Which is better, one or two?
Look up/down.
I don't understand.
Where is the bathroom?
You need glasses.

Spanish:

Hola. Como esta usted?
Cubra su ojo derecho/izquierdo.
Pueda lea la linea de letras?
Que letra o numero es?
Mejor o peor?
Cual es mejor? Uno o dos?
Mire arriba/abajo.
No entiendo.

Exploring the Ruins

Students enjoyed three days of relaxation after their hard work. DIF generously organized and provided transportation to visit nearby Mayan ruins. The gang got a close-up look at the Temple of Masks and a breathtaking view from atop of the ruins.

...and then there were the beaches and lagoons. The tropical sun provided plenty of warmth and energy to build up even the weakest of tans. Later, the group was invited to the Minister of Health's beach house where they swam and feasted on freshly caught grilled fish.

[the grilled fishy...yummy...]

...and a few of the more adventurous VOSHers journeyed to the neighboring country of Belize. They travelled by taxi, bus and boat and saw ancient Mayan ruins, tropical birds and monkeys swinging in the trees. Some went on a two day visit to Ambergris Key, a small island off of the coast for where ocean snorkeling provided a truly unforgettable experience.

The Eyeball

The 67th annual Eyeball was held at the beautiful Long Wharf Marriott. Students and faculty gathered for cocktails at 7pm followed by a night of fine dining and dancing.

SLIDESHOW & PIZZA EVENT

(brought to you by yearbook and the notetaking service)

Just before the start of Spring quarter finals, the class was treated to a 20 minute slideshow extravaganza in LH2 featuring select pictures taken from those submitted to the yearbook over our three years. The music from the stereo system rang throughout the halls and everyone had a good time seeing themselves on the big screen. Afterwards, the class enjoyed pizza in the conference room.

After our last final exam, the class headed over to celebrate at Crossroads -- NEWENCO's traditional watering hole down the road. It was a time to relax and hang out with friends one last time before people had to leave Boston for their new clinical rotation sites as OD4s. In keeping with tradition, there was champagne and a toast for best wishes to the class to cap off the afternoon festivities.

The Toast ~ "Congratulations to the Class of 1998!"

During the OD4 year, students were assigned to a minimum of three clinical rotations based on their own top choices and the availability of the positions offered at each site. Students were then given the option to audit a fourth clinical quarter at a clinic of their own choice. External sites were offered across the country and many students found themselves on quite an adventure! From the variable seasons of New England to the tropical breezes of the South reaching across to the mountains and the sunny beaches of the West Coast, students experienced a new kind of independence, a new way of life, a variety of clinical settings and most importantly, everyone learned how to live and work with others. Some of the clinical sites offered to students in 1997-1998 are listed:

It's hard enough to make it through school as a single student and attending classes, stressing out over exams, practicing for proficiencies or working on weekends in the library researching material for assignments but imagine how life can be when you have to consider a 'significant other' in your life as well! This page congratulates the students who managed to balance school-life along with married/family-life (real life?). Extra congratulations go out to those students who had children during the years at school.

student council :

The student council governs the internal affairs of the NEWENCO student body. SC is responsible for processing, managing and allocating student activity fees. Use of these funds includes social school events, clubs, Eyeball, yearbook, AOSA and VOSH activities and trips. SC also promotes the mutual understanding and respect among students, faculty and administration.

Steve Phung (NOSA), Rosa Guerreiro (OD1 VP), Candice Macri (Eyeball), Todd Kim (OD3 rep), Sean Kull (AOSA), Steve Perryman (VOSH), Don Ninneman (OD3 pres.), Derek Maroun (OD2 pres., OD3 VP), Mikki Cohen, Mike Marino (OD1 class pres., SC pres. national optometric student association (N.O.S.A.) :

NOSA is a student branch of the National Optometric Association (NOA) of predominantly minority optometrists. NOA's primary objective is the delivery of vision/health care to the minority community. One of the goals of the NOA is to actively recruit minority students into schools and colleges of optometry and to provide assistance to new graduates, as well as to provide minority optometrists with practice knowledge, skills and professional practice, placement and the procurement of financial aid.

student ethics committee (SEC) :

The student ethics committee (SEC) serves the professional and moral interests of the optometric education by addressing matters of academic and professional misconduct outlined in the student ethics policy. SEC acts as a liaison between the student body and the administration to promote honesty and fairness in teaching at NEWENCO. The group represents student opinion in testing policies and clinic rules and regulations. It is comprised of a total of eight student representatives chosen from members of each class. Based on faculty, administrative and student recommendations, the committee selects members annually. A third year member who has previously been on the committee serves as chairperson.

beta sigma kappa (BSK) : tutor service

The Beta Sigma Kappa (BSK) International Optometric Honors Society credits high achievers in academics. Membership in BSK is yearly and based on GPA. BSK members may be a part of NEWENCO's peer tutoring system which is available to all students at no cost. The goal of the tutorial program is to provide students with the opportunity to work with successful upperclass students on both material clarification and study skills.

The notetaking service is an (invaluable) service run and funded by participating students (the majority of the class). (Dedicated and underpaid) notetakers attend and record lectures on tape

the greater omentum (men's basketball team) :

The Class of 1998 men's basketball team, The Greater Omentum, was organized during the Winter Quarter of 1994. The team played at the YMCA in Cambridge against other local teams. The Greater Omentum enjoyed one of the largest fan clubs in the greater Boston region and often times after a game, the players would be swarmed by screaming teenage girls and Boston Globe paparazzi. According to the modest offense/defense pro-player Mike Peterson who lead the team in technical fouls, they "squeaked into the playoffs and then got killed by the first place team."

Yearbook'98

Hey Class of 1998!

Congratulations! Can you believe it?!? We did it! We've gone and graduated. I hope you agree that it's been a great four years. I'd like to thank the class for allowing me to organize a crew of dedicated people who were willing enough to volunteer their time and effort into producing this yearbook. I'd especially like to thank Cindy Kang and Tina Parker for their continuous hard work and for providing me with their unending moral support in putting this project together. My thanks go to Marjorie Hewitt at Herff Jones for her help in being a very patient and helpful yearbook advisor.

It's been a lot of hard work and stress trying to meet deadlines on time but believe it or not, it's been a blast. If this yearbook is able to make you smile, cry, laugh or even yearn for the good old NEWENCO days, then I think we've done a wicked good job.

So now, we're off to start yet another chapter of our lives. We'll put our school days in Boston behind us but the lifelong friends we've made and the memories we shared will not be forgotten. Friends will always be just a phone call, an e.mail, a 'snail-mail' or perhaps a block away. And as for the memories, they'll not only be forever in our hearts and minds but also tucked away neatly between the covers of this book.

To quote Bob Hope, "Thanks for the memories.",
Take care and see you at the next reunion,

notetaking service :

The notetaking service is an (invaluable) service run and funded by participating students (the majority of the class). (Dedicated and underpaid) notetakers attend and record lectures on tape

(if their recorders work!) and later transcribe them (furiously) into notes. Notetaking coordinators organize and distribute notes (in a timely fashion) to all students who purchase the service.

the greater omentum (men's basketball team) :

The Class of 1998 men's basketball team, The Greater Omentum, was organized during the Winter Quarter of 1994. The team played at the YMCA in Cambridge against other local teams. The Greater Omentum enjoyed one of the largest fan clubs in the greater Boston region and often times after a game, the players would be swarmed by screaming teenage girls and Boston Globe paparazzi. According to the modest offense/defense pro-player Mike Peterson who lead the team in technical fouls, they "squeaked into the playoffs and then got killed by the first place team."

It Takes All Kinds

by Tina Parker

Once upon a time back in 1994
many seeds were collected for a floral decor, only the best garden variety was allowed in raw form,
to be planted, nurtured, and fed

For the genetics of each were already strongly present, uncertain at first, who knew what to expect,
from this batch of unknowns that soon began to show
all of their colors throughout the rainbow, some red hot, cool blue, and mellow yellow while the others filled the spectrum in between

And with deep long roots anchored into the fertile soil, day by day this floral garden gradually grew,
taller with knowledge, towards the sun as its guide,
wider with desire, out to the horizon of blue skies

And soon it was apparent, how unusually bright, the future of this dream was turning out to be,
a blue ribbon prize, first place all the way,
for reasons we now know the key to this doorway,

Is taken upon us all, the "A" number one team,
because it takes all kinds, one by one you see,
the power from within has the potential to be,
the important difference in every issue of optometry,

So, on your mark, get set, the time has come,
to be hooded with your doctorate shaded in green,
the color of life and continuing growth,
carried out by each of you, the colors,
that uniquely make up our optometric rainbow.

Congratulations to the Class of 1998

"dO yOU sEe hOW i SeE?!?"

Every student experiences some sort of "self-change" throughout school like getting a new hairstyle or losing weight but only optometry school are we interested in how each other's refractive error and binocular status have changed over the years! Just for laughs, here are the "before's" (before NEWENCO) and "after's" (after graduation).

"Best of luck to the Class of '98!"

~ Stacy Ayn Lyons, O.D. '88

To my future colleagues,

REMEMBER, life begins after optometry school! Live it fully and strive for balance. Success lies in the Smile of the individual.

REMEMBER, you now have a gift to offer others. Give it generously and your professional life wil always be fulfilled.

Best Wishes!

Ilara Donarum, O.D.

"Congratulations to the Class of 1998!"

~ Kathleen Krenzer, O.D.

For helping me throughout college with a smile,
For teaching me to dance the Indian dance,

For working with me at NHL,
For encouraging me with your glance,

For embracing my pain throughout law school,
For standing by me during the bar,

For helping me form my company,
For riding with me in my less than perfect car,

I can utter but a simple thank you,
And pray.

May God bless you....Doctor.

I love you, Bapi

Didibhai,

I am proud of you and I know you'll be a great eye doctor. We are now two well educated women. Let's show this world what we are made of....together.

Your loving sister Ruma

Soma,

Congratulations on your great achievement. We are so proud of you. May your life be filled with bliss.

Hira Kaku

Soma,

We brought you to this country for all the opportunities it had to offer and we are so proud of you. Your sister and you are now well educated women - ready to shape the world. We love you dearly.....Doctor.

Your Mother & Father

Soma,

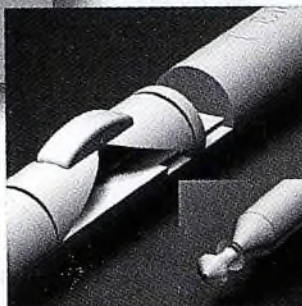

We waited so long for this moment. I am now the proud Auntie of a professional woman of the nineties. Cherish this success forever in your heart. We will always stand by you.

Your loving Bithi Mashi
