It was nice to get a summer's day on 30 March - 19C when I left the area at 4.00pm.
Carn Goch seems like a simple area - an open hillside - but careful navigation is needed because of the rock detail and to keep a check on where you are on the slope.

(I'm hoping to get Routegadget sorted out in the next day or two and this event could be a useful way to test it out. Maybe come back in a day or two and draw up your route, please.
In the mean time I'm interested in who on the Green took a route around the hill for leg 1 to 2.
The route is marginally shorter (if you equate 10m climb to 100m on the flat) and provides a safer line into the control (using the significant spur before it as an attack point). Please let me know if you chose that route.)

Thanks to Habgoods for helping to collect in some controls.

Farmer was appreciative of your car park donation but intends to keep enough for a bottle of wine and donate rest (£15) to Air Ambulance.
