

Find Your Future Path

Future Path Scenarios

1. You live on the streets and you are always hungry. Your parents kicked you out three months ago because of your drug problems and your choice of friends. You can't keep a job because of drugs. You are on probation for having drugs. You want to get your life straightened out.
2. You work at Burger King and earn minimum wage. You must take the bus to work. You've had several jobs. You have a hard time keeping jobs because you like to party. Your parents are ready to kick you out for coming in late. You joined AA to get your alcohol problem under control. You have problems paying $80 per month for rent.
3. You are working as an assistant manager of a bank. You just graduated from State College with a degree in Business. You are single and rent a nice apartment for $1,000 a month. You drive a used Jeep. You make $22 an hour and love your job.
4. You are working as a manager of Taco Bell for $18 an hour. You just finished your AA degree at the community college. You live with your Mother and have a one year old baby. You pay $425 a month for child care and $150 a month for rent. You drive an old Ford.
5. You are working as a nurses assistant for $14 an hour after six months of training. You drive an old Volkswagon. You live at home with your parents and two younger sisters. Your parents have strict rules about what time you can come in and when meals are served. You also must pay $60 a month rent.
6. You worked as a security guard after six months of training. While working you took courses at the community college for three years. Now you are working as a police officer after training at the police academy. You are making $25 an hour and like your job. You are married with a new baby and live in an apartment. Your only car is a Honda Civic.
7. You are working for a construction company making $18 an hour. You own a truck and are renting a room from the parents of an old friend for $350 a month. They don't like it if you have friends over and you have to be quiet. They do let you share meals so you are lucky to have a nice home-cooked meal every day. You like your job and want to get your contractor's license in a few years.
8. You are working for $30 an hour in LA as a makeup artist for a studio and you love your job. You own a Mustang and live in a nice apartment for $1,200 a month. You are married and both of you work. You have had two years of job training and a one year internship.

Choose Your Future Path

